

JICK MUNRO & THE AMAZING LASERBEAMS
THE ROAD

Well son I've been searching for a place of my own
A place I can wander, a place I call home
I guess there's a light that will guide me this way
It I'll make sure I won't get stranded on my way, on my way

And all of my friends they were afraid that I'd go wrong
They're sure it won't be easy living life out on my own
But in this mad mad world where good people don't exist
I learned to trust another and not lean back on my fists

Oh the road's an never ending life
Oh the road has fooled me more than twice
Oh the road provided me a home, oh a home

I've seen all the sorrow and the misery that went on
It made a deep impression at the man I've become
The place where I was raised, didn't learned me much of life
But it gave me much of the strength I hold on to through the night

So I stopped praying, cause there is no one above
I've with had it with these phony gods its al misunderstood
I believe in fortune and that you make your own sweet luck
Put your faith in people, make sure that they deserve you

Oh the road's an never ending life
Oh the road has fooled me more than twice
Oh the road provided me a home, oh a home
